AMERICA and the Modern World

BY WALTER WELLMAN

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

NEW YORK.—All over the world horror and pity were aroused by the appalling disaster in Japan. Millions of men and women were led to ask "Why must such thing be?" And perhaps a few have been reminded that the World War in its sacrifice of human life, the cripples and hopelessly afflicted among its victims, its wreckage of property, prosperity, human hope and happiness, was nothing less than a Japanese earthquake every month throughout four terrible years.

Many whose hearts are stirred by the castastrophe on the far side of the globe, and whose relief contributions have been most generous, are not much inclined to give serious thought to the greatest of all questions of our day—how future wars may be averted.

During the latter months of his life at least Mr. Harding was of a different attitude of mind. On this question he reflected earnestly, almost constantly. I shall never forget the simple yet impressive manner in which he spoke to me of such disasters as floods, volcanic eruptions, typhoons, earthquakes, pestilences. His thought was that Nature makes these, man is unable to prevent them, he is their victim. He does all in his power to lessen their tragic effects, but he cannot stop them.

Suppose he asked, a way were found to eradicate one or more of these evils? Does anyone doubt the earnest support all the people of the world would give to such preventive measures? If chemists were to learn that tuberculosis is spread over the earth by a certain universal manufacturing process which scatters the germs through the air to be carried by the winds to infect and afflict many millions? And the only way to stop it was for all the nations to get together and enact in international law a rigid prohibition of that process with ample penalties for violation of the statute? How long would it take to assemble all the nations in a world congress for the enactment of such a world law and the provision of powers to enforce it henceforth?

* * * *

Of course the application of this pertinent illustration of the late president's is quite obvious. Nature does not make war as she makes the other evils. Man himself makes war. He does not make it unconsciously, or by accident, but deliberately, with full knowledge of its blighting effect. It is not made by irresponsibles, perverts, degenerates, but by the highest men and minds of modern civilized nations chosen to administer the governments of and for the peoples. And it was with emphasis Mr. Harding declared:

"It is about time sane and sensible men stopped the making of this hideous thing."

Having reached the conclusion through careful analysis that the abolition of war is now practicable, that it is no longer a mere dream or vision but a reality which may be soon achieved by the simple process of getting the nations together to stop making it, as they would stop the making of all other catastrophes and plagues if they had the power, it is not strange that he was eager to set in motion the official process which he believed would bring about the great achievement.

Mr. Harding spoke of the skepticism which is so common, and in this connection pointed to a paragraph in the memoranda he had before him, saying it had his unqualified approval. I copied that expression, and here it is:

Perhaps a majority of people believe that as war has always been in the world it must always be. Many skeptics scoff at the proposal that the master peoples of the earth shall use their power like masters to free the race of this inherited curse. But it is worth remembering that the long, long road over which humanity has marched in its journey from savagery to the civilization of our day is marked by the many scrap-heaps of useless or worn-out things which man has grown weary or ashamed of and resolutely flung to the wayside. Among these countless gruesome milestones along the highway of the ages of human progress may be found the remains of dead and gone slavery, religious persecution witchcraft terrorism, piracy, the duello, the divine right of kings, autocracy, racial hatred, woman's political and social inferiority — a host more, every one of which in the heyday of its vogue most men thought must exist evermore because it had existed from the beginnings. Now war is ready for its proper place in the scrap-pile by the roadside.

* * * *

The late president pointed out that our country has been praised by many foreign historians for its good work in two fields of progress. One, in the promotion of peace, which was among our earliest national ideals. The other in efforts to minimize or eradicate disease in all parts of the world. It was America which led in the virtual abolition of yellow fever. And he spoke of the Rockefeller Foundation's most praiseworthy and effective campaign against plague and disease in many lands.

Since the prevention of war has

COOLIDGE IN FIRST PUBLIC ADDRESS SPEAKS IN PRAISE OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A deep faith in the spiritual things, tempered by a hard common sense adapted to the needs of the world is the kind of practical idealism that is represented in the history of America, President Coolidge said Monday in an address before the annual convention the American Red Cross. The people, he added, are not likely to adopt any other course.

The idealism of which he spoke, the president said, was illustrated by the men who went to the rescue of Europe when their own liberty and the liberty of the world was in peril, but who, after victory was secured, retired from the field, "unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached and unbought."

President Coolidge's address, his first formal utterance, was devoted to praise of the qualities which have made the Red Cross a success. Chief among these, he said, was its practical idealism.

Applies Fundamentals

The American Red Cross is a modern application of an ancient principle, the president said. The idea of charity is very old. It is included in the teachings of the earliest philosophers. It is one of the fundamental doctrines of our Bible. It is a spiritual conception of human relationship. It is life in obedience to the things that are unseen.

"Throughout history men have prone to put their trust in other things and have failed. They have sought for power through material resources alone. They have thought it might be gained by the accumulation of great races. They have attempted to rely upon the naked force of armies and navies, conquering by the might of the sword. But these forces are not the ultimare force in the world. They do not make the final determinations among men.

Appeals to Conscience

"Mankind has not yet, cannot yet, discard the use of these forces. It is significant, however, that the great nations have at last agreed upon their limitation. But it is even more significant that civilization is coming to rely more and more upon moral force. It is because the Red Cross has been a practical application of that principle, that it has been such a tremendous success. It makes its appeal for support directly to the conscience of mankind. It does not attempt to function through the direct action of organized government. It does not have in it any element of compulsion. It is the voluntary offering of the people themselves. MOTHER CONFESSES SHE GAVE POISONED CANDY TO CHILDREN

Elkhorn Woman Attempts to Take Lives of Four Children; But all are Recovering

WOMAN ALSO TELLS POLICE SHE POISONED HER HUSBAND

May be Held for Murder for Death of Mate Several Years Ago

ELKHORN, Wis. — Detailing the manner in which she gave her four children poisoned candy last Friday, Mrs. Myrtle Shaude, 36 years old, of Whitewater, told Alfred Godfrey, district attorney of Walworth county that she gave "the children the poisoned candy just before they were leaving for an automobile ride into the country, in the belief that when it took effect the machine would be hopelessly wrecked and it would appear that all had been killed in an accident."

Mrs. Schaude is held in the county jail here without charge, while the investigation of her story continues, with authorities planning to place a charge of first degree murder against her in connection with the death of her husband two and a half years ago.

Mrs. Schaude told Attorney Godfrey after the investigation of the illness of her four children began Saturday, that she had killed her husband by giving him poisoned candy. The murder charge to be placed against her will be based on this action, pending the complete recovery of the children.

Children Rejected Candy

Friday the four children, Ralph, 16 years old, Delbert, 13, Mae, 9, and Lawrence 5, were leaving their home for a ride when their mother gave them the candy. According to her story to the authorities she noticed that Ralph ate but a small portion of his candy, throwing the remainder away and complaining of its peculiar taste.

Delbert and Mae, she said, had but nibbled at the coating of the candy, but Lawrence had taken some into his mouth. This Mrs. Schaude removed with her finger, declaring if all could not die at once, she wanted them all to live.

Officials said this morning that a large number of letters taken from Mrs. Schaude's home may figure prominently in the case. The four children have not shown any ill effects of the candy.

Find No Motive

Attorney Godfrey said he had not been able to find a real motive for the woman having killed her husband and attempted to take the lives of her children.

Mrs. Schaude conducted a boarding-house at her home in Whitewater, where approximately twenty students of the Whitewater Normal school boarded.

At the time her husband died, a former soldier, a student at the school, was among the boarders. He dropped from sight shortly after the death of Mr. Schaude, who was 40 years old.

Officials announced today they had learned that the four children were heirs to an estate left by their father which amounts to $2,000 each. The will provides that in the event of the death of any of the four, the share of the estate should go to their mother.

Ten years ago, records show, Mrs. Schaude was committed to a mental hospital following a nervous breakdown, from which she was said to have completely recovered.

INQUEST STARTS IN DEATH OF SCARSBO, STRUCK BY AN AUTO

Jury Views Scene of Accident; Witnesses of Collision are Examined by Gordon

CASSIDY, CAR DRIVER, SAYS HE COULDN'T SEE MAN IN STREET

Other Witnesses Say Rain Clouded Windshield

THE inquest into the death of Peter Scarsbo who died about noon Monday, Sept. 17, from injuries sustained when he was struck by an auto driven by Leo F. Cassidy at Third and Grove streets, shortly after midnight on the same morning, was begun Monday morning. At noon the investigation was adjourned until late Monday afternoon.

The inquest is presided over by Coroner Raymond Dwyer. District Attorney Gordon examined witnesses. Fred H. Hartwell appeared for Cassidy. The coroner's jury was composed of John C. Burns, Frank W. Sisson, Burt C. Smith, C. P. Thompson, John Mulder and L. W. Meyer.

Jury Views Scene of Accident

Examination of witnesses began after the jury had viewed the scene of the accident. Harry Trimm of Galesville, owner of the car which Cassidy was driving and which killed Scarsbo, was the first witness. He told of coming into town from Galesville Sunday evening with his wife and of meeting Cassidy who they were acquainted with, at a lunchroom on Third street. Cassidy got into the car and they drove to the north side to get Miss Jane Stevenson. Then they drove around the north side for a time finally going to Jim Sokoloik's place on French island. There, according to Trimm, they had two rounds of drinks, alcohol in white pop, and also danced. About 11 p. m. they came to town, going to Yeomen hall, where a dance was being held.

Cassidy drove the Ford touring car back from the island, Triman said. At the Yeomen hall, Cassidy and Miss Stevenson went in to dance, Trimm and his wife remaining in the car. After the dance Cassidy and Miss Stevenson and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, of the north side, got into the car and started for the north side, Cassidy drove the car, Johnson was sitting in his wife's lap in the front seat. 100,000 Peasants Reported To Be Moving On Sofia

PARIS.—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Sofia reports one hundred thousand peasants, a majority of them armed, are marching on Sofia in an attempt to overthrow the government.

SOFIA.—By the Associated Press.—The general situation in Bulgaria shows a marked improvement. A few isolated cases of rebellion are still being reported, but these are regarded as unimportant.

Troops supported by the population have restored order in certain villages where a soviet regime was declared.

A band of fifty communists which had been formed at Rosevo fled into the mountains where it surrendered. The two chiefs committed suicide and their men gave up their arms.

CRISIS NEARS IN OKLAHOMA WAR ON KLAN

Lines Clearly Drawn Between Governor and Legislators Who Plan to Meet in Special Session Wednesday

MAJORITY OF SOLDIERS KLAN MEMBERS DECLARES LEGISLATOR

Claims Jewett Can End Martial Law in State by Calling Out Membership of Klan

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—By the Associated Press.—Hours separating the Oklahoma legislative and the executive formal clash narrowed to forty-eight Monday with the lines drawn taut between Governor J. C. Walton and those members of the house of representatives who seek to indict him as the preliminary step toward impeachment proceedings.

The day brought more witnesses and more testimony at both the Tulsa and Oklahoma City military courts of inquiry. Charges of riot were expected to be made here against participants in a lashing party alleged to have been led by N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma Ku Klux Klan.

On Wednesday noon the house is called to meet in extraordinary session despite armed guardsmen before the doors of house and senate chambers.

Governor Walton may not be the exclusive subject of legislative investigation, it was indicated. Several members of the legislature may be asked for explanations of certain actions not mentioned.

Twenty-four hours after Governor Walton issued an appeal for $100,000 to establish a newspaper that he might "let the people know the truth," the executive told press correspondents he thought he would "just use hand bills larger than ordinary hand-bills distributed about the street, and consisting of four to eight pages."

Soldiers Klan Members?

OKLAHONA CITY, Okla.—By the Associated Press.—A statement declaring that "ninety per cent of the members of the Oklahoma national guard are members of the Ku Klux Klan" and that "all that would be necessary to stop martial law in Oklahoma would be for N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma realm of the klan, to call out klan members of the guard" was issued today by Dr. G. S. Long, state representative from Tulsa county.

Dr. Long, an admitted member of the klan, made it plain, however, that such action would not be taken by leaders of the organization.

"The klan oath is a rededication of a man's loyalty to the constitution of Oklahoma, the constitution of the United States, the government of Oklahoma and the government of the United States," he asserted, and so long as governor Walton exercised his authority as governor of Oklahoma, klan members of the national guard will remain loyal to the orders of their commander in chief."

SALZER WAREHOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

A warehouse owned by the Salzer Seed company located at Seventh and Hood streets was damaged by fire, the cause of which was unknown, Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock. Officials at the company had not estimated the damage Monday.

Fire officials investigating after the fire believed that the flames started in bales of paper on the first floor. The flames shot up an elevator shaft and started in the roof when fire company No. 3 and 5 arrived.

FIVE LIVES LOST AND FIVE BALLOONS DESTROYED, DAY'S TOLL IN BENNETT CUP RACES

Two American Lieutenants are Among the List of Dead; Races Started Sunday Under the Worst Weather Conditions in History of Air Classic; Only Two Balloons Land Safely

BRUSSELS.—By the Associated Press.—Five airmen, including two United States army lieutenants, lost their lives, another was seriously injured and five balloons were smashed on the ground or destroyed by lightning in the James Gordon Bennett cup race, started Sunday under the most adverse weather conditions ever experienced in the races.

The dead:

Lieut. Olmstead and Lieut. Choptaw of the United States army balloon S-6.

Lieut Von Gruningen and Lieut. Wehren of the Swiss balloon Geneva.

Penaranda Braca of the Spanish balloon Polar.

The United States navy A-6699 and Fernande III, a French entry piloted by G. Blanchet, were the only balloons reported as having landed safely.

In view of the terrific storm which broke out half an hour after the last balloon took off, and raged until ten o'clock, fears are entertained for the safety of the ten balloonists not yet heard from. These are Bienaime and Ravaine, balloon, Picardy, France; Demuyter and Weenstra, balloon Belgica, Belgium; Dunville and Spencer, England; Armbruster and Picard, Switzerland; Le Lasierra and Magdalena, Spain.

Couldn't Postpone Events

Officials of the Brussels Aero club point out that they had advocated postponement of the race but found that the rules were inflexible. They will propose changes to overcome this difficulty. Many members, however, favor cancelling the competition altogether.

The third American entrant, the balloon St. Louis, never took the air, bursting before the start from the pressure of her anchor rope.

Caught in Gale

The S-6 was caught in the vortex of a terrific southwesterly gale in crossing the Belgian frontier about 7 p. m. the rainstorm forcing the balloonists to unload all ballast. When the balloon crashed at Nestelrode both men were dead.

Lieut. Olmstead was killed outright when lightning struck the balloon, while Lieut. Choptaw died when the S-6 fell, in the opinion of physicians. Lieut. Olmstead's body was found under the bag in the basket, while his companion was about 25 feet away.

The disqualification of the United States army balloon S-6 had just been decided on because of her ramming the Belgian entry, Ville de Bruzelles, at the start of the race, when news of the disaster reached the Aero club.

The balloon Zurich, Swiss entry, landed at Eersel, Holland at seven o'clock Sunday night without incident, according to a report from the aeronauts.

An unconfirmed report reached here that the Belgian balloon piloted by Demuyter had landed in Oldenburg and that Demuyter and his assistant had been arrested, and the balloon confiscated.

MONEY IS NEEDED TO SUPPORT HOME FOR FRIENDLESS

Supporters of Charitable Organization Asked to Increase Their Aid this Year

REPAIR AND MAINTENANCE WORK NEEDED IN HOUSE

Hundreds of Penniless Old Persons Cared for by Home

APPEALING to the supporters of the "Home for the Friendless" to increase their giving to protect the slender endowment of the "Home," the board of trustees of the well known local charity has opened its annual subscription list for the coming fiscal year with a goal of approximately $2,500 for the 1923-24 budget.

In the last year, according to the statement sent to subscribers, the home ran $400 behind. The year previous the deficit was $800. These shortages, it is poinetd out, have only been met by drawing on funds left to the home for endowment, and if this necessity is to be continued the home will shortly find itself with an income too small to permit its work to continue.

The "Home for the Friendless," as the institution is popularly known to two generations of La Crosse people, is the oldest La Crosse charitable institution, and the only entirely local charity in the city. It was incorporated August 20, 1888, and since that time has cared for literally hundreds of penniless old folk and orphaned or otherwise underprivileged children. At the present time the home is caring for 23 persons, of whom 20 are children.

Repairs Needed

Aside from its annual Valentine Party, when residents of the city interested in the work were asked to give donations of money or goods, the Home for the Friendless had never found it necessary to make a public appeal for funds until last year, finding it possible to make ends meet by careful economy with its small endowment income and the annual gifts of its regular subscribers. But in 1922 the board found that the home was losing the battle against rising costs. Its income was nearly stationary while all its expenses were climbing in the way familiar to all householders. It had been necessary to make extensive—and expensive—repairs to the building on Ferry street, and even though only the most urgent of these were taken care of the deficit still remained. Accordingly the situation was laid before the city, and as a result the number of subscribers to the home was considerably increased. However, the increased income was still insufficient to cover the annual budget.

This year more repair and maintenance work on the home is needed, there is an increased salary budget of $600, and the running expenses of the home will be no smaller.

Mrs. G. van Steenwyk, 237 South Eleventh street, is the treasurer of the home. Subscriptions may be sent to her direct, to the Tribune office or to any bank in the city.

ARREST FORECAST IN PIG PASTURE SKELETON MYSTERY

Clew to Identity of Man Found Near Prairie du Chien Found in Cincinnati

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis.—The forecast of an arrest in a few days was the development Monday in the mystery surrounding the finding of a body of an unidentified man on the hog pasture of the A. B. Tully farm, near Rising Sun, Wis., thirty miles north of here, on Labor day.

A necktie found near the skeleton, one of the few tangible clews in the mystery, shifted the scene of the probe temporarily to Cincinnati, O., where it had been purchased about six months ago from an exclusive haberdasher.

An examination of the skeleton and pieces of clothing found near it, indicate that the body must have lain in the pasture for about six months, it was said.

"The murderers are from this vicinity," was the comment of Sheriff Stevenson's office Sunday night," and their arrest is just a matter of hours."

That robbery was the object of the murder is seen by authorities in the fact that the pockets in the trousers of the body had been emptied and turned inside out and that an expensive bill-fold, bearing in gold the initials "R. F." had been robbed of its contents.

Judging from the skeleton, the man was of a small stature, he had been clothed in corduroy trousers, a woolen shirt, linen underwear of good quality, a pair of shoes of expensive make and hand-sewn soles.

Mr. Jehlen is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Mabel Miller and two children, Evelyn, aged 3 and William, aged nine months; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Jehlen, 318 South Eleventh street, three brothers, Rudolph, Walter and Arthur, and three sisters, Mrs. Emil Seitz, of Winona, Miss Marion, student at Stout Institute, and Agnes, at home. Mr. Jehlen enlisted in the Wisconsin National guard on April 16, 1914.

Funeral at Parent's Home

The funeral will be held from the home of his parents, 318 South Eleventh street, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. S. H. Roth will officiate. Captain H. A. Rupp has requested that all overseas men report at the court house square at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon.

MARGARET ANGLIN COMES THURSDAY

Of special interest to La Crosse theatre-goers is the announcement that on Thursday next, Margaret Anglin will head an ensemble of imported cast in "The Woman on Broadway" at the La Crosse Theater for performance.

The play is by Paul Kester, adapted for the French, and tells the story of a wife who is willing to sacrifice everything that makes life worth while for her on the altar of her husband's honor. A friend who could comprehend his unscrupulous business methods and new modes would find no excuse for the knowledge of suffering he requires of the end of the play, the husband finds the limitations of suffering for which he has never given in the eyes of his own wife. The interpretation of the role of Margaret Anglin with another well known star and the high standard of production which has marked Margaret Anglin with one of the great theatrical roles of her career.

Handling this great part with all the skill of a virtuoso, Miss Anglin brings her entire New York production to La Crosse and an excellent supporting cast.

MUSICAL COMEDY SCORES BIG HIT ON SUNDAY AT MAJESTIC

The Billy Maine Comedy company is scoring its biggest success at the Majestic theatre this week in "A Stubborn Cinderella," the well known musical comedy which scored such a hit in New York last year. The play is very well reproduced here, the scenery is elaborate and correct and the costuming and acting well done. The role of Colonel Hunt, the funny old Scotchman, is interpreted by Mr. James LeRoy, who took the same part in the original show. To Colonel Hunt is entrusted the guardianship of Lady Leslie who is enroute to San Francisco to meet her fiance. She is not to be allowed to associate with anyone her own age but when she visits Columbia College and meets "Mac" the old colonel doesn't have such an easy time of it. He gets many a laugh from the audience. Lois and Skeeter furnish plenty of lively comedy throughout the play.

FRATS ARE WARNED AGAINST BAD HABITS OF THEIR MEMBERS

Pamphlet Advising Chapter to Take Stock of Activities, Issued by U. W. Dean

MADISON, Wis.—A pamphlet giving the shortcomings of fraternities has been printed by Dean Scott H. Goodnight of the university and will be distributed to the Wisconsin fraternity houses.

The statement warns that each fraternity chapter should immediately take stock of its members' habits and activities.

"There are immoralities in college fraternities and they are more far reaching than the same immoralities in individuals," the pamphlet says. "Fraternities are ardent supporters of the liquor traffic. In some institutions proportionately more fraternity men than others are caught in dishonest acts and financial irregularities. The alumni who return to the chapter house are an immoral influence and continue the process begun while in college, of corrupting students. There is a conspiracy of silence on the part of fraternity men and workers to hide fraternity immorality.

"Fraternity men have no manners, are extravagant, impolite bores. They are 'time wasters,' 'fire-side hams' and 'loafers' who spend their time at pool and vaudeville instead of at the business of getting an education."

The statement originated at the National Inter-fraternity council, was forwarded to Dean Goodnight, who in turn is giving it out to Wisconsin fraternities.

HEARKEN

HEARKEN unto Me, O ye children; for blessed are they that keep My ways.—Proverbs 8: 32. Do not My words do good to him that walketh uprightly?—Micah 2: 7.

"Stop That!"

THE more intense you are about the things you believe or the way you behave, the more you will be prompted to abolish those who differ with you. So claims Felix Adler writing in The World Tomorrow.

While his psychological theory may not hold true for all of us, it unquestionably explains the Poll Pry attitude of many prohibitionists and blue law advocates in general.

For instance, a person who dislikes cats easily could be induced to join a League for Killing All Cats.

Many a person is an ardent prohibitionist simply because, when he once sampled whiskey, he disapproved of the taste. Not liking it himself, he unconsciously formed a "complex" (or obsession) against others who really enjoy their liquor. The rule works similarly with the Red Nose Gent, who wants everybody to have booze because he likes it himself.

The Society-Against believes at the bottom of its heart that the members of the Society-For are crazy and that there should be some way of abolishing them.

It is primitive instinct, Dr. Adler contends, for us to like those who are like ourselves and to dislike those who are unlike us. Here you have the explanation of race prejudice and also the cause of many wars.

These dislikes short-circuit a lot of careers that might otherwise be successful. The chronic busybody devotes so much time to prying into and regulating the affairs of others that his own affairs suffer by neglect.

When a busybody's Poll Pry instinct becomes sufficiently diseased to be a phobia, he is apt to run for public office or become a reformer.

Democracy ideally is a condition in which the individual's conduct is interfered with as little as possible by outside forces, interference being tolerated only when the conduct of the individual affects the welfare of others.

Democracy dies at the roots when personal dislikes or individual prejudices are compulsorily grafted on to the public at large—as, especially for example, certain phases of movie censorship.

We will not be surprised if the League for the Suppression of Spring Onion Eaters grows into a national political party one of these days.

Color Lures

FISHERMEN and campers who want to be left alone by mosquitoes should wear yellow clothing. Investigations by scientists at Cambridge University in England disclose that mosquitoes stay away from yellow, having an almost unanimous aversion for it. On the other hand, these buzzing biters flock to navy blue with great joy, it being their favorite color. Light blue, they avoid.

People who have lived in a mosquito country know that these pests are attracted by light, like moths, and naturally the best way to keep them away is to sit in darkness at night. Mosquitoes also are attracted by the scent from warm, living bodies. Flies, on the other hand, are drawn by the odor of carrion or other decaying food. The Cambridge scientists check up and confirm the belief that flies and mosquitoes never travel long distances except when carried by the wind. They breed nearby. An old tin-can full of stagnant water is a natural mosquito incubator. Flies multiply fastest where there is a stable or garbage they can reach.

As far back as Darwin, it was proved that many insects, especially bees and butterflies, have a color sense and color preferences. Flowers display the colors that lure the insects that distribute the flowers' pollen for cross-fertilization and reproduction. Insect life is easily the greatest natural enemy of man, next to germs. Science in studying insects is waging a sort of world war for all of us.

Awful Noise

THE Chinese, before the white man began selling rifles to them, used to amuse us by wearing false faces and making frightful racket, especially with brass gongs, to scare their enemies in battle. But maybe the Chinese knew what they were doing, after all. Professor A. M. Low, English scientist, predicts that noises will play an important part in future warfare. "Noise," says Low, "has a very curious effect on human beings. The more civilized they become, the more noise affects them. Lots of people in the last war were sent into a serious condition by the nerve-racking effect of noise. I can imagine the aggressive use of selected noises to undermine the morale of population and the development of all sorts of anti-noise devices."

Were you ever in a keyed-up nervous condition where even slight noises made you jump? The rasp of a file, the squeak of new shoes, the monotonous drumming of fingers or shrill whistling by a boy—these are described by nervous people as "enough to drive one crazy." Noise, even in a condition of healthy nerves, is shocking to the nervous system. It's a marvel that people in civilization are as sane as they are, considering the thousands of blows or shocks that reach their nerves daily in the form of noises. Later, as cities become larger and noisier, there'll be campaigns against the more annoying sounds, just as there's now a "silence zone" near every hospital.

Fortunately, nature is quick to protect us. The miller gets so he ignores or doesn't hear the rumble of his mill-wheels. So, too, we get so the fearful din of civilization passes in one ear and out the other without our noticing it. This is because the power of receiving a sensation becomes more or less paralyzed by repetition.

Loafers

EUROPE has two million fewer soldiers in service now than in 1913, but it still has nearly four milloin under arms, according to estimates by military experts. If these troops were home working in field and factory, instead of idle and non-productive in uniform, Europe would gain nearly four billion dollars a year by their production. That's figuring their labor at only $3 a day apiece. Four billion dollars a year would pull Europe out of the hole by 1930 or before.

Changing

THE bottom of the Atlantic ocean, 800 miles from the southern tip of Africa, slowly bulges up to make a mountain two miles high under the sea. This upheaval is gigantic to us, but it's mild compared with the huge size of the earth. It might very easily have taken place on land instead of beneath the waves, and given a large section of our country a terrific shaking. We live in uncertainty, figuratively on thin ice. But we plot and plan as if nothing could teach us and we were here on earth for all eternity instead of only a few more years.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

The membership of the U. C. T. was swelled today by the arrival at St. Francis hospital of a seven-pound "traveling man" addressed to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hurtgen, 820 South Sixth street. This makes three for Joe without a Miss.

Prof. W. R. Hemmenway, aged 63 years, died suddenly in St. Paul last night, according to word received today by J. E. McConnell, personal friend of the professor. Mr. Hemmenway was for twenty-three years principal of the La Crosse high school and was one of the best known educators ever connected with La Crosse schools. He was succeeded here in 1908 by Prof. L. P. Benezet.

The local board of trade today received word that the Eastern Synod of the German Reformed church, which met in Washington, D. C., yesterday, had voted to remove the Mission House, as the church's theological seminary is called, to La Crosse from Sheboygan. All that is left for this city to do now is to raise the $30,000 for the bonus and provide a site. $3,000 has already been raised.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

A meeting of prominent Catholics of the city was held last night in Linker hall to discuss the advisability of organizing a council of the Knights of Columbus here. Prominent officials of the order addressed the gathering and urged the La Crosse men to affiliate with the society. Enough La Crosse men applied for membership to assure the success of a lodge here and installation will be held soon. La Crosse is the only city in the state which has no representation in the society.

Carl Foerster, democratic candidate for alderman in the Eighth ward, was last night elected by a plurality of 140 votes. A special election had to be held to fill the place of the late Henry Lexius.

Mr. R. T. Lee, formerly of La Crosse, and Miss Clara Peterson, of Coon Valley, were married last evening at the West Avenue Evangelical church. Mr. Lee is a tailor in Nelson, Minn.

A dozen houses, barns and sheds burned last night in North La Crosse in one of the worst fires to take place there in many years. The property belonged to Mr. Allen, E. I. Hiscox and J. D. Hiscox and was between Rose and Mill streets near St. Andrew. Boys playing with matches started the fire. The south end of the Rose street viaduct caught fire too but the flames were soon extinguished.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Rev. George Haxmeier of Lansing, Iowa, is in the the city on business pertaining to the building of his new parsonage.

The new addition to B. Noelke's store on Main street is nearly completed. Workmen are now putting on the tin roof.

Dr. and Mrs. Bradfield have gone to Chicago to visit the World's Fair.

Mrs. C. Collinan has returned from a six months' sojourn abroad, including a visit to London and cities in Scotland and Ireland.

Thomas I. Skeoch and John Nauer, late of Minneapolis, have formed a partnership in the Novelty Sign company and will locate in the old Opera House.

Good News From a Far Country

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

"It does seem to me," Mrs. Rayley sighed weakly, "somethin' good might happen for us once in a while."

"Surely. It not only might—it does," Daughter Frances answered briskly. "Look at that basket—all the cabbage plants we need—and half a dozen tomatoes—"

"But—no ground ready for settin' out," her mother interrupted. "I call that an aggervation of Providence. Either it ought to a-sent somebody to work out the gyarden for us—else let the plants and things wait ontel we ware good and ready."

"Waitin' ain't the way ever to get things ready," Frances retorted, as she spoke grabbing her palmetto hat. "I've got a hoe—and there's no law against my usin' it—"

"But—the ground aint checked off—you'll put them hills as crooked as a dog's hind leg." Mrs. Rayley protested—to thin air. Frances was skimming down the length of the big garden patch, to reach the rich moist earth along its lower edge. The mill road ran just outside, but with everybody so busy, planting and plowing, passers were likely to be few. Anyway, she was past caring. It was fine to be "genteel"—her mother's catchwork—on scant fare, but not so fine to be hungry. Besides, she had inherited her father's love for land and growing things. It was the love that had made him risk his small tidy farm, in reaching out for wider room. He would have won through all right, but for the accident—a falling tree had crushed him just as the first big crop needed him worst. After that—the deluge—collectors, sheriffs, the wasting away of his vision. All that remained to widow and daughter was the homestead which boasted, besides, garden and paddock a fine young orchard and a bit of grassland, barely enough to pasture the cow.

Neighbors had been sympathetic enough through the trouble. After things settled, though, there seemed little room for help. That is to say, unless the Rayleys helped themselves. The garden had been planted for them last spring, but it had gone to weeds and grass, lacking tillage. Mrs. Rayley said she "hadn't been raised to the hoe," also she forbade Frances to risk sunburn and hardened hands by experimenting with the implement. That had not set very well with those round about, not even with Jem Parsons, who had brought the basket, and galloped away before Frances got to the door to thank him. He was downright sorry for the women, said Jem, but folks that wouldn't work couldn't expect to eat—Scripture said so. He wouldn't have troubled himself to give them this chance of working, only he had so many lusty stocks it hurt him to think of throwing them away.

Frances somehow sensed the fact—possibly the sensing, added to appetite, had sent her out to work. She did it valiantly, heaping the light, fresh earth into tidy mounds, keeping them a-row by glances at the garden palings, and trying to make the next row even, and evenly spaced. With a hundred hills in hand, she began planting. Her mother had scurried out, exclaiming querulously that it was a crying shame—her father's daughter coming to that. Frances had shrugged, saying over her shoulder: "'Stead of scoldin' suppose you drop plants for me—then the shame maybe won't burn you so bad."

For there was Frances, stooping to set out the plants she had herself dropped, bare of head and arms, with her faded calico frock kilted so high it revealed at least 10 inches of shapely legs—and just over the fence Jem Parsons, turned suddenly to an equestrian statue, calling gayly: "Say Miss Frances: Want a boy to help?"

"Nope—can't afford such extravagance. I'm no plutocrat, in spite of the way I look." Frances flung back at him saucily over her shoulder, not even pausing to give him a look.

"Don't believe a word of it. Unless you were richer'n cream-and-peaches, you'd never dare do—things like this" Jem said in her key. "Don't you dare run away—I'm coming to get the job."

Flinging his reins over a handy swinging limb he vaulted the fence at its lowest gap. At his approach, a scarlet Frances dropped flat, so as to hide her enchanting legs. "You go away!" she ordered: "Else I'll lose the rest of the plants—you know the season goes so fast from ground in May—"

"No you won't!" from Jem confidently: "Go long plantin'—I'll make up the rest of the hills—and then we'll finish together. Never mind how you look—I know what workin' in the dirt requires."

Frances rose to a stooping posture, seized her planting leg, and went down the row, no longer scarlet, but dumb and pale—hardly able to see for the tears in her eyes.

Jem helped her manfully—with all the things he had brought. Planting finished, he looked up and down the garden-breadth a minute, then broke out: "Don't you be mad with me—but right here you've got a chance you need—and ought to take. Let me help you to take it—I'll have all the ground harrowed fine, and laid off right. And—you must let me get the seed and plants and things you need—this cabbage ground in strawberries for next year will fetch you money. Never mind about plants—I've got 'em to throw away. You won't have to depend on local demand—there's cooperative shipment now—and more of it coming. This is the earliest garden-spot in the county—and one of the richest. But you shall have fertilizer, too, all you need—if you need it. And, if work gets too heavy for you single handed, I'll see to your having help. All of us will indeed, now that I can tell all hands you're willing to help yourself."

Then, for the first time since her father was taken, saucy Frances broke down, sobbing like a baby.

That season she barely broke even, not counting in her living, which was vastly bettered. She might have come out in debt but the orchard hit, and the fruit, thanks to timely spraying, was very good. It would be better next season, said Jem—he had found a buyer for it on the trees at a fair figure. Mrs. Rayley fretted over that. She had no doubt in the world the buyer was "in cahoots" with Jem, and they would cheat a widow and orphan somethin' sharmeful. Frances merely laugher. She had learned that laughing was the best antidote to maternal stings and arrows. Jem had tried to make her keep the apple money. She needed new clothes and to take a cutie case, he said. She only shook her head. Independence, dearly earned, was too sweet to be perlled, even for such a friend.

She was better every way stronger, sweeter tempered, kinder in judgement—always she had been generous and open in all her thoughts. But what with sunshine, and contact with masculine atmosphere, she knew herself another woman. Jem also knew it—heart-breakingly. Life had transmuted her into the mate he craved and he was not free to tell her so. A co-ed back in the agricultural college, had his hard-and-fast promise, which he had not the least excuse for breaking. She had not gone back to the kind of her people but became the head of a village improvement society some hundreds of miles away. Nobody in his orbit had ever heard of her and he groaned in spirit thinking of what must happen when she came to him. Her image was barely a fitful presence now and then breaking into his dreams of Frances.

Came to him a letter—airy, full of condescension. The co-ed lady had found out she didn't really care for land and things. She had found also a mate—a fledgeling missionary—and they were going together to far countries, where she had always yearned to travel—but hopelessly.

A little later Jem took Frances in his arms saying as he kissed her: "I've got to do something, honey—I've just had good news from a far country. Help me celebrate."

SILOS WILL SALVAGE FROSTED CORN, SAYS EXPERIMENT STATION

Ensile Crop as Soon as Possible and You Will Save it, Morrison States

Badger farmers who own one or more of Wisconsin's 95,000 silos are fortunate, particularly if their corn crop were seriously damaged by the recent heavy frosts. The silo furnishes the best means of salvaging the feeding value of the crop.

According to F. B. Morrison of the state agricultural experiment station, the crop should be ensiled as soon as possible after it is killed by frost, for if it is allowed to stand in the field, rains will wash out most of the nutriment from the frosted forage, and the winds will also whip off the dried, brittle leaves.

If the crop is very immature when it is fostered, it will make silage which is too watery and sour if the fodder is put into the silo with all the water present in such immature plants. Accordingly, if the fodder is cut at once, the bundles may be allowed to lie in the field until the fodder is dried out a trifle, so that it will contain about as much water as corn fodder does at the usual silage stage of maturity.

On the other hand, when there is a large acreage of frosted corn, quite often before the last of it can be cut and ensiled, it will have dried out too much to make good silage. In this case enough water should be added as the fodder is ensiled so that the material will pack well. Furthermore, especial care should be taken in tramping such fodder firmly in the silo.

SCIENCE PROTECTS FARMERS AGAINST INFERIOR OIL-MEAL

MADISON, Wis.—A new method for protecting farmers in the state against adulterated oil-meal has been perfected by W. H. Strowd and B. W. Griem of the state department of agriculture. The United States department of agriculture has accepted the new test as a basis for instituting suits against companies which fail to bring their oil-meal up to the standard required by statute.

According to Strowd the meal sold by two of the seven companies in the state was below standard but with the coming of the new adulteration test these two companies have ceased to adulterate their product.

The adulterant which is most commonly used is screenings. This method of adulteration has defrauded the farmers who have been purchasing these meals of from five to seven dollars a ton.

RURAL DISTRICTS WILL AGAIN HEAR RADIO SCRATCHING

MADISON, Wis.—Radio "bugs" in the rural districts of the state are looking forward to the coming of fall weather when the annoying scratch of static will not interfere with their evenings entertainment.

October 1st will mark the resumption of station WHA at the University of Wisconsin. Agriograms will feature the rural end of the program again this year.

Get your batteries charged up and be all set to tune in when WHA starts broadcasting again.

SALEM FARM TO HAVE BIG HERD OF CATTLE

WEST SALEM—O. G. Clarke's big barn is almost ready to receive its 1st quota of 200 to 300 head of grade Guernseys and Holsteins. This week James cow stalls and stanchions are being rapidly installed and yards of concrete are being laid each day. It is Mr. Clark's intention to keep the barn filled with stock at all times so buyers can find what they want promptly.

HOG CHOLERA BREAKS OUT AGAIN ON VOLD FARM NEAR VIROQUA

The recent outbreak of hog cholera in and around Viroqua has caused much alarm throughout Vernon county. The most recent outbreak, namely that of A. J. Vold of Viroqua has caused the greatest alarm in that no trace is found of its origin.

Dr. Purcell of the Livestock Sanitary board, Madison, Wis., recently caused a thorough investigation of hog cholera in Vernon county. He gave the best possible information for controling the disease and recommended such measures of prevention as could reasonably be carried out to control the further spread of the disease. His best recommendation was that of vaccinating the herds immediately to insure permanent insurance against the disease or secondly to watch each herd carefully and vaccinate as soon as any real evidence in a herd could be found that would indicate presence of cholera. Dr. Purcell cautioned all hog raisers against promiscuous vaccination. However, he sincerely recommended that all cases of the disease should immediately be reported to the local veterinary. Where the local veterinary could not be found then notice should be given to the county agent, in that some authorized veterinary could be obtained to take care of the condition.

LA CRESCENT FRUIT GROWERS ORGANIZE TO MARKET PRODUCE

LA CRESCENT, Minn.—By an ingenious method adapted by the recently organized La Crescent Fruit Growers' Marketing association it will be possible at a glance to know from what man's orchard the fruit sold, has been picked, as each grower's name will be stamped on the bottom of the baskets in which the fruit is marketed. The fruit will be loaded cooperatively, making it possible to ship apples at the proper time and insuring a better quality product. The officers of the organization are: President, D. C. Webster; vice president, Will Burrow; secretary, Ed. Hurley; treasurer, J. A. Lilly. August Schwartz director. During the apple season the association will hire a saleman, who will have as his work the sale of the fruit and will be aided by the secretary who will have charge of loading same at the point of shipment.

DAIRYMEN OF STATE WILL HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION IN OCT.

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin Dairymen's association, pioneer in the field of dairy development, will hold its annual convention at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, October 25.

Tentative arrangements have been made for an all-dairy program. Demonstrations by a youngster's calf team will be followed by talks and demonstrations by G. C. Humphrey, Dane county, who is president of the organization, and R. C. Hulce of the Badger farm school.

Paul C. Burchard, of Jefferson county, who is secretary is slated for a place on the day's program. If present plans mature several well-known farmers from out in the state will address the gathering of dairymen on their experiences in feeding a high producing herd and using sweet clover as pasturage for dairy animals.

APPLES BETTER THAN EVER BEFORE, MOORE

Farmers in the state are producing more quality apples this year than ever before in the opinion of J. G. Moore of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture who has been judging apple exhibits at fairs for the past number of weeks.

The quality of the fruit throughout the state is generally much better he commented. "The number of farmers who are growing fruit of high quality is on the steady increase." Moore declared. "there being more high quality fruit in the state this year than in any previous year."

Better methods which are being adhered to by the farmers are responsible in a large measure for this improvement Moore believes. Spray rings have sprung up around the state and today there are 70 of these organizations whereos five years ago there were none.

In placing 63 trays of apples at the state fair this year Moore examined every apple in 25 trays before he found a single blemish caused by worms. Moore said that this was very unusual. Exhibitors are learning that it does not pay to enter wormy fruit at the fairs and consequently they are striving to grow quality apples that will warrant the blue ribbon awards in competition.

FIGURES SHOW RECORD OUTPUT OF AUTOMOBILES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Record production of automobiles and trucks was shown in figures for this year made public by the commerce department. The report showed that up to September 1, 181 manufacturers had turned out 2,431,063 passenger cars and 258,774 trucks, exceeding the totals of either of the entire preceding two years.

FAIR AT VIROQUA TO STARTS THIS WEEK WITH BIG SCHEDULE

Large Purses Expected to Get Fast Horses for Six Races of Fair

VIROQUA, Wis.—The sixty-seventh annual Vernon County Fair will be held at Viroqua, September 25, 26, 27 and 28.

Extra and elaborate preparations have been made in order to take care of an unlimited amount of exhibits in the various departments. This has been done, due to the fact that Vernon county is fortunate in having nearly every conceivable product necessary to make fair exhibits successful. Expert judges have been secured in the various classes of exhibits. A large field of horses is expected and the race track has been put in excellent condition. Stalls may be reserved upon advance payment of rental. Nineteen hundred dollars will be offered in race premiums. The race program follows:

Wednesday—2:25 trot, purse $300.00; 2:25 pace, purse $300.00.

Thursday — 2:15 trot, purse $300.00; 2:17 pace, purse $300.00.

Friday—2:20 trot, purse $300.00; 2:10 pace, purse $400.00. The race track has been rebuilt since the fair of last year.

Among the free attractions to take place every day in front of the grand stand are the "Bell-Thazer Trio—America's Wonder Acrobats," in original balancing feats and exhibitions of flexibility—the embodiment of grace and skill, and the "Casting Campbells," a troupe of four American gymnasts. The handsome silver cups to be given away during the fair to successful breeders of live stock are now on display in the jewelry store windows of Mr. Kenneth Larson, E. D. Harrington and J. W. Lucas. The officers of the fair association include: F. M. Minshall, president; W. E. Garret, secretary, and L. U. Favor, treasurer, and an executive committee of eight members.

BETTER ROADS MAKE BETTER CROPS, SAYS AGENT W. SPREITER

Limestone Screenings from Road Work Furnished to Farmers in Novel Scheme

La Crosse county has discovered a method for making highway improvements aid better farming. Fine limestone screenings from quarries supplying road material are being furnished to farmers to improve their soil and grow alfalfa, at one-third the cost of commercial limestone.

About two years ago, county agent W. E. Spreiter began to look for cheaper sources of lime for alfalfa growing. La Crosse county uses a good deal of crushed limestone rock in road work, operating stone crushers in a number of county-owned quarries, and Spreiter conceived the idea of using them to supply lime to farmers. After much investigation and many conferences, the county road and bridge committee installed fine screens in four quarries to separate out the dust and fine particles for agriculture use.

This season is the first in which the plan has been tried and already hundreds of tons of limestone waste has been hauled away by farmers, who pay one dollar a ton for the material. Spreiter reports that the demand exceeds the supply. Practically all the limestone goes to help increase the acreage of alfalfa in La Crosse county, which will save farmers thousands of dollars now paid for hay and feed from other states. Practical cooperation between county officials in La Crosse county has resulted in a situation where highway improvement means soil and farm improvement also.

WISCONSIN DAIRY MEN WILL APPEAR AT NATIONAL MEET

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Wisconsin men will be heard from on the program at the National Dairy Exposition to be held here October 5 to 10. F. B. Morrison and G. C. Humphrey of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture will address the assembled delegates representing thirty-seven foreign nations. The former will talk on "Feeding Standards for Dairy Cows" while the latter will speak on "Judging Dairy Cattle." Another Wisconsin man, R. T. Harris, also of the Badger farm school, is chairman of the official testing section of the American Dairy Science association.

VALUE OF FAIR

THE La Crosse Inter-State Fair is over. The animals have been taken back to their respective farms and the fair grounds are empty for another year. The benefits of the fair, however, still remain.

The importance of fairs of any kind can hardly be overlooked. A fair brings to the farmer a chance to see what his neighbor is doing, what other farmers in other localities are doing, and what he can do by using different methods and equipment. The fair introduces to the farmer many new types of machinery, which may save him many hours of hard work. It gives him a chance to meet his neighbors and to compare crops and data with others who are interested. It gives him a chance to observe blooded stock, to exhibit blooded stock, and to learn to pick out the fine points in the aforesaid. It gives him a chance to see at close range the type of tractor or disk harrow or plow that he is planning on buying, and to compare it with others.

How many times have you stood in the exhibition building of the fair and heard somebody say, "that pumpkin isn't so darn big. Why I've got one on my farm twice as big as that." If the fellow that said this has one on his farm twice as big, then it should have been the pumpkin back there in the field that took the prize. The fellow simply didn't have enough civic and personal pride to bring it in. The same case applies to the farmer who has blooded cattle and fails to exhibit them. The prizes are adequate, and besides this, the cattle are judged and rated free of charge.

There won't be another Inter-State fair until next year, of course, but when this fair does come around, it is up to every farmer in the vicinity to exhibit. Surely, the few dollars spent in attending or in sending stock to the fair will bring more in return than most dollars that you can spend.

TOBACCO CROP

THE importance of tobacco as a crop in this locality is already known. Here are a few facts that you probably don't know in regard to its use:

The people of this country, during 1922, smoked 54,000 million cigarettes, 6,900 million cigars, and 400 million pounds of pipe tobacco. This total makes about 500 cigarettes, sixty cigars, and four pounds of pipe tobacco for every man, woman and child in this country.

Local farmers have long realized the value of raising tobacco, and many acres of the valuable weed are grown in this vicinity. Perhaps the cigar or cigarette you smoke tomorrow has tobacco in it that was at one time growing on your neighbor's farm.

FUTURE OF "CO-OP" MOVEMENT INVOLVED IN TOBACCO RULING

Validity of Contracts Between Growers and State Pool Argued in State High Court

MADISON, Wis.—On the decision of the state supreme court on the validity of contracts between tobacco growers and the state tobacco pool, argued before the supreme court Saturday afternoon, rests the future of Wisconsin co-operative organizations.

The action is brought by the Northern Wisconsin Co-operative Tobacco Pool against M. T. Bekkedal, Lloyd Bekkedal, Andrew Nottestad, Ole Johnson, Will Nelson, Arnold Johnson, Albert Larson, Henry Moon, Oliver Mickrud and Adolph Sveen, independent buyers who purchased leaf that had been sold under contract to the pool.

Officials of the pool declare that in order to exist the organization must be able to contract so that they can estimate before hand how much business they are to have in the harvest season.

The growers can not ask that the pool be dissolved as an alleged illegal combination under the anti-trust laws because application for such relief must be made by the attorney general, Attorney General Herman L. Ekern and Alvin C. Rois, assistant attorney general, held in statements to the court.

"The plaintiff's alleged violation of the anti-trust law is not a defense for the defendant in the present action by the plaintiff to enforce its contracts unless those contracts are themselves, in violation of the anti-trust law," Mr. Reis declared.

"The plaintiff's contracts with growers are not in violation of the anti-trust law unless the provision for exclusive sales by growers to the plaintiff for five years is an unreasonable 'restraint of trade' or unless the clause, which makes effectiveness of the agreements depend upon obtaining signatures of 75 per cent of the growers, is intended to restrain or prevent competition to the detriment of the public."

Attorney Emerson Ela, representing the pool, sketched the development of farmer co-operation. He told of the necessity of combined action for the sale of farm products in order to prevent loss through "dumping" on the market for the benefit of speculators.

Walter Corrigan, attorney for the defendant buyers, claimed that the contracts were a violation of their rights to do business in the state.

Corrigan charged that the condition of the contracts had not been fulfilled and that the pool had failed to sign up 75 per cent of the tobacco crop as they reported.

He also asserted that the pool had repudiated contracts which it now seeks to maintain.

PEA GROWERS FORM ASSOCIATION AT GALESVILLE, WIS.

GALESVILLE, Wis.—The Galesville Pea Growers' association has been organized here as the first co-operative enterprise in Wisconsin built up in the pea growing industry. A large group of farmers has already entered the new organization.

Under contracts signed by members they agree to pool their crop for a three year period, the product to be sold under the pooling arrangement.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY AT HOLY COMMUNION PUBLIC BREAKFAST

Two Hundred Members Take Part in Celebration and Hear Bishop McGavick

The Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Cathedral at its breakfast Sunday morning after a public holy communion in which about 200 men participated, was addressed by Rt. Rev. A. J. McGavick. He said in part:

"The Holy Name Society, being a religious organization, has certain purposes in view which are clear and definite. One of these is to deepen and strengthen faith. Our faith is not as strong as it once was. Compare our faith with that which made possible the great cathedrals of Europe, and those wonderful universities that have come to us from the distant past. At the same time we are surrounded with multitudes who have practically no faith and whose influence must tend to weaken faith generally.

Society Invigorates Faith

"The Holy Name society would invigorate faith by the open and public profession of it. Its members marching to or from the church under the banner of the Holy Name and in all their exercises, seem to proclaim with one voice: 'We believe in Jesus Christ, in His teaching, His divinity, His church; we believe in the power of grace, and immortal life with eternal reward or punishment.'

"It aims to preserve the Christian home by developing within it a truly religious spirit which is its surest safeguard. The home will not be either perverted or subverted when the spirit of Christ reigns in it. Concord, harmony, mutual love as well as peace and happiness will always find a habitation within those walls where there is unfailing religious practice and training, and where the voice of prayer is heard. That is accomplished when the men of such homes, especially the fathers, are faithful members of the Holy Name society."

"And still another purpose of the society is to save the youth of today, especially the boys. There are many ways of assisting in saving boys, and not the least among these is good example shown them by their elders. By an instinct of nature boys seek to imitate men, to repeat their words, to copy their habits and to be what they are. When I see a bad boy I feel that some wicked man must have scandalized him, and when I see a good boy I am convinced that he has had close contact with the lives of some very good men. So destructive is scandal, so powerful is good example!

"The Holy Name society proposes to show forth in its members those ideals of right living which should serve as beacon lights to boys on their pathway through life."

The Pledge of Society

"The pledge made by all Holy Name members on being initiated is as follows: 'I profess publicly my belief that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Son of God, made man for the salvation of mankind. I recognize His divine authority, and believe that all power on earth, civil and religious, comes from Him. All lawfully constituted authority I respect and promise to obey. May the God of Justice guide the minds and uphold the hands of those vested with its power. May the God of Might break as under the bonds of those met together against the Lord and against His Christ. In honor of His divine Name I pledge myself against perjury, blasphemy, profanity and obscene speech."

INGRAM IS HERE TO PREPARE FOR BAPTIST MEETING

Interesting Talks Given by Man Who Spent Twenty Years in Burma

Rev. J. F. Ingram, a conference secretary of the Northern Baptist convention, spoke yesterday morning in the First Baptist church on "Pioneering Among the Savages of Himalaya Mountains of Northeast India." In the evening he addressed the Scandinavian church of the north side on "The Significance of the Earthquake in Japan.

Mr. Ingram came to La Crosse on Saturday to make some preliminary investigations and to complete preparations for the Bible and Missionary conference to be held in connection with the Wisconsin Baptist state convention which meets in La Crosse, October 15, 16, 17 and 18. It is anticipated that from six hundred to one thousand Baptists will come to La Crosse from all parts of the state to be present at this great convention. Mr. Ingram is making arrangements for a Baptist special train from Milwaukee on the 15th of October. He is spending a month in the state working up a large delegation for these four days in La Crosse. This is but one of thirty-five such Bible and Missionary conferences being held in different states of the union.

Dr. Ingram comes to Wisconsin as a speaker of rare interest, having achieved a great record as a missionary for nearly twenty years in Burma where he left his impress in an unusual way upon the educational and national life as well as upon the religious progress of that great country.

Born in Canada

He is a Canadian by birth, and after full arts and theological training in Toronto, Canada, he came to the States for some post-graduate work, and then went, out in 1903 as a professor of English in the Baptist college at Rangoon, Burma. After three years in the college, he resigned his professorship to undertake a pioneer missionary work for a wild warrior tribe, known as Kachins, living in the Himalaya Mountains along the Chinese frontier. Having perfected himself in the Kachin language, till he could think in it as readily as in English, he prepared in Kachin, at the request of the Indian government for use in schools as prescribed text-books, a series of five readers for as many grades, four copy-books, a series of elementary science readers, a treatise on hygiene and sanitation, and arithmetic and a geography of India. He also translated for the use of the mission, Pilgrim's Progress and a large collection of hymns and wrote a treatise on the plan of salvation and another on Baptism by immersion, as well as an outline study of the acts of the Apostles.

Dr. Ingram worked so hard at this essential task that twice his health was wrecked and he was ordered home on furlough, but he refused to leave his Kachins until his literary work was completed.

Meets Committees

In La Crosse, Dr. Ingram interviewed committees, giving suggestions for making the Bible and Missionary Conference here a great success. Registration committees were appointed in the First Baptist church and also in the Scandinavian Baptist church of the north side to work up the local delegation. Miss Ethel Hanson is convenor of this committee on the north side, and C. V. Maxfield is convenor of the committee of the First church.

Memphis was supposed to have been one of the largest cities of the ancient world.

THREE FORMER FIRST LADIES IN WASHINGTON

Wives of Former Presidents Living in Capitol City This Winter

WASHINGTON. — Of course the news that Mrs. Florence Kling Harding is coming back to Washington to live this winter has set Washington society a-talking this week. With Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson already "in residence," Mrs. Harding's arrival will bring the list of one-time "First Ladies" resident here up to three.

Mrs. Taft, as wife of the chief justice, reigns as leading lady in what the wagsters term the "supremest court circle" and Washington is likely to see a lot of her this winter because she will likely do "quite much" for her attractive young niece, Patricia Herron, whom she is bringing out.

There is a feeling also that Mrs. W. W. will launch forth on some tremendously important social program. Rich lady politicians of the tea-cupster group are getting all worked up and behind their hands they tell you that Mrs. Wilson has been over to New York visiting the Barney Baruch's and that she and Mrs. Helm have been over to Newport.

But Washington society has other interesting things to talk about. For instance, Turkey is going to have a diplomatic representative in Washington one Halida Edib Hanem, who has only one wife, and she is coming along with him. Mrs. Halida knows something about politics, too. She did not do a thing but drop the "yashmak"—(you know, that terribly becoming eye-veil)—and discard the baggy silk trousers in favor of occidental petticoats. She took a degree in Roberts College in Constantinople and then she walked herself over to Angora and helped establish the Ottoman government.

I can see her walking right in here and sharing honors with the Princess Bibesco, who writes books, and Madame de Warzee and Madame Hubrecht and a lot of those women in the diplomatic corps who go in for developing their talents and then turning them to good account.

You know, Washington is keen on the Orient—and I do wonder if the arrival of the Halida Edib Hanems will knock the Persian legation out of first place? The Persians, with the minister, Mirza Hussien Khan Alai first in the running, have been terribly popular. There have been some delightful parties up at the legation in Sixteenth street where it's a treat to the average mortal just to get a glimpse of the gorgeous old rugs and the embroideries. Only the Persian ladies seem to be left at home. Never a sign of one here at any rate.

End Film and the prettier teeth lead to open smiles

This Offer
May bring you a delightful surprise

Do you realize how many prettier teeth you see nowadays?

Millions of people now brush teeth in a new way. They combat the cloudy film. And those whiter, cleaner, safer teeth show what that method means.

You and yours will use it when you once learn what it does. And this free test will show you.

Those dingy coats

Your teeth are coated with a film—that viscous film you feel. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is how teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Some of these troubles come to nearly all. You should fight the film.

Two easy ways

Now dental science has discovered two easy ways to fight film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over now advise it. Careful people of some 50 nations use it every day.

Natural—gentle

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to better fight mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva, to better digest starch deposits. So every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

Thus Pepsodent brings its amazing results in natural and gentle ways, without harsh grit.

Pepsodent results are quick and apparent. They will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the cloudy coats disappear.

This means much to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

U. S. SUPERVISION OF COAL INDUSTRY URGED IN REPORT

Federal Coal Commission Recommends New Division of Interstate Rail Commission

PROPOSES BROAD REGULATORY POWERS FOR NEW AGENCY

Commission Goes Out of Existence by Limitation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Government supervision of the coal industry is proposed in the final report of the United States coal commission created by congress more than a year ago to recommend a solution of the vexatious problems in that industry which have been clogging the progress of American business for years.

The commission would set up machinery for the governmental control of the coal business through a new division of the interstate commerce commission which now regulates the railroads.

Power of Proposed Agency

The proposed new agency, besides being given authority to obtain facts relative to costs, profits, investments and wages under the legislation suggested by the commission, would possess broad regulatory power through licenses issued to operators, wholesalers and middlemen. Consolidations of bituminous coal companies would be encouraged but with financing arrangements subject to governmental approval.

Imposition of a graded excess profits tax upon profits of anthracite operators and upon royalties paid to anthracite land owners is recommended as means of keeping down prices.

The coal commission ceased to exist at midnight Sunday night by limitation of the act creating it. A number of supplemental reports on special phases of the coal problem remain to be issued during the coming week. The final report deals broadly with the general question of the regulation of the industry.

Legality of Action in Doubt

The legislation proposed, according to the belief of members of the commission, will be sustained in the courts although there is doubt as to the legality of some points. The commission proposes to base governmental supervision on the power of congress over interstate commerce. Operators, wholesalers, and jobbers desiring to sell coal in interstate commerce must obtain licenses. The commission concedes that there is no authority for federal regulation of the distribution of coal in communities.

Whether the supreme court will take the view that coal production is purely an intrastate matter as the lower courts have held in the Maynard Coal company cases is one of the doubtful points involved. There also is a question as to the view of the supreme court on the public interest of the coal business, declaring that food and water only outrank coal among the necessaries of life.

Public Character of Coal Business

Members of the commission do not believe that the Supreme court when confronted with this specific question will hold to the view that there is nothing of a public character about the business of coal mining as was intimated in a decision in the Kansas industrial court case.

The commission states that the regulation of commerce in coal among the states involves the right to know the cost of production, whether the investment on which a return is claimed is fairly estimated or inflated, what profits are made by the owner, operator and dealers, and what are the earnings and working conditions of the mines.

While information along this line has been gathered by the coal commission under the authority of the act creating it, efforts by the federal trade commission to obtain monthly cost information from the coal operators were block in 1920 by injunction proceedings in the District of Columbia Supreme court. An appeal from the adverse decision of this court is now pending before the Supreme court of the United States.

To Continue Gathering Data

The coal commission proposes that the geological survey shall continue to gather data relative to production of coal, that the bureau of mines shall continue to deal with questions relating to safety in coal mining and to quality of coal, and that questions relative to labor conditions shall be taken care of by some other agency, such as the department of labor.

In times of emergency it is recommended that the coal division of the interstate commerce commission shall act as federal fuel distributor with authority over transportation and distribution of coal under the direction of the President.

STRIKING PRESSMEN REFUSE TO RETURN; IMPORT UNION MEN

NEW YORK.—Members of the local union of pressmen, whose unauthorized strike has hampered New York newspapers for a week, have refused to return to work.

George L. Berry, international president, in a statement after a meeting of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union, which was stampeded by members of the striking local, declared New York's daily presses would be run, if a whole force of men had to be brought from outside the city for each press. "Many union pressmen have arrived and many others are enroute," he said.

COOLIDGE IN FIRST PUBLIC ADDRESS SPEAKS IN PRAISE OF AMERICAN RED CROSS

ever an emergency has resulted in human suffering, to the extent of its ability it administers whatever may be necessary for temporary relief.

"It is in this direction that there lies the hope of real progress. The ancient ideals of human brotherhood of service, the application of the Golden Rule of peace on earth and good will towards men, are idle dreams unless they can be translated into practical action. It is necessary, on the one hand, to avoid the illusions of the visionaries, and on the other hand, the indifference of the selfish. Each individual and each nation owe their first duty to themselves. Beyond that there is the obligation of the strong to serve the weak, but to administer such service in a way that will not destroy or degrade by making mendicants, but restore and strengthen by making character. It is the policy which helps in an emergency but realizes that, finally, each individual and each nation must work out their own destiny.

Need Practical Idealism

"The constant need of civilization is for a practical idealism of this kind. It does not attempt to perform the impossible. It does not seek to reform merely by an act of legislation thinking that it can unload its burden on the government and be relieved from further effort. It does not undertake to assume responsibility for all humanity. But it realizes that redemption comes only through sacrifices. When a crisis arises, it does not hesitate to go out and make whatever sacrifice is necessary to master the occasion.

"It is this kind of practical idealism that is represented in the history of our country, a deep faith in spiritual things, tempered by a hard common sense adapted to the needs of this world. It has been illustrated in the character of men who planted colonies in the wilderness and raised up great states around the church and the schoolhouse, who bought their independence with their blood and cast out slavery by the sacrifice of their bravest sons; who offered their lives to give more freedom to oppressed peoples, and who went to the rescue of Europe with their treasure and their men when their own liberty and the liberty of the world was in peril, but when the victory was secure, retired from the field unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached and unbought, still continuing to contribute lavishly to their relief of the stricken and destitute of the old world; and who but recently being asked for five million dollars, immediately gave about twice that amount for the afflicted people of Japan. Such has been the moral purpose that has marked the conduct of our country up to the present hour. The American people have never adopted and are not likely to adopt any other course.

Spirit is World-Wide

"A contemplation of these principles and the works which they have wrought, both in our country and among the other nations, for this spirit is world-wide, is helpful and reassuring. They are among the convincing evidences that justify our faith in mankind. They reveal the fundamental strength of civilization. They demonstrate the supremacy of the spiritual life.

"Here we behold the race struggling up through barbarism, overcoming ignorance and establishing order, instituting government, painfully working out their own destiny under free institutions, acknowledging and accepting the truths of religion, gradually casting aside selfishness, endowing the great charities which healthy body inform the mind and minister to the soul, making on every hand unending sacrifices that the truth may be supreme.

"Such is the strength of the influence, of which this organization is one of the representatives. It is inconceivable that it could have come thus far only to retreat, that it could have succeeded up to the present time only to fail.

Red Cross Truly American

"These are the encouraging, the hopeful things of the world. While it is necessary to admit that progress has been slow, that there have been, and undoubtedly will be many disheartening failures, I believe the conclusion to be inescapable that there is every warrant for confidence. The encouraging feature of these results lies in the fact that they come from the voluntary actions of the people. They are not mandates from privilege, they are not imposed from without, they arise from within, they disclose the conquering ,the victorious struggle of a higher nature. They do not represent a law of man, they reveal a law of God.

"It is for these reasons that I take a large satisfaction in extending a welcome to this convention and acting as its presiding officer. I respect it for what it has done and what it is. I am mindful of its purpose and its origin. This organization had its beginnings in the day of Abraham Lincoln. It's representative of the dominant influences of his time. It partakes of his spirit. It shows the way to a larger freedom. Our country could secure no higher commendation, no greater place in history than to have it correctly said that the Red Cross is truly American."

THREE DAY DRIVE IS PLANNED HERE TO HELP BLIND

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are Days Decided Upon for Campaign

A meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce tonight to formulate plans for the campaign to raise money here this week for the trade school and workshop to be erected at Milwaukee for the blind in the state.

People often inquire how blind persons can perform all the difficult tasks they do. When a person becomes blind, it is explained, he or she develops other senses to such an extent that it makes up for the loss of eyesight. Blindness will be hard to endure until those who can see wake up and help the blind to help themselves.

Eight clubs and organizations in La Crosse are interested in the campaign to raise $4,000 here this week. Representatives of these organizations will meet at the Chamber of Commerce tonight to complete the plans for the drive. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are the days set for the drive.

Walter Goetzinger, prominent local blind citizen, today strongly indorsed this movement because, he said, it will remove the blind beggar from the streets and create a different impression in the minds of the public as to what blind persons can do.

HUGE TOW SAFELY DELIVERED TO FORD PLANT AT ST. PAUL

The Interstate is returning from a trip up river with a large dredge and other tow pieces, totaling 18 in all, which will be used at the Henry Ford plant in St. Paul. The steamer Mary Ellen assisted the Interstate in taking the tow from Burlington, Ia., to St. Paul. The trip was made without any mishap and was one of the biggest tows taken up river in many years.

Charles Ristow pleaded guilty to using a seine that had meshes smaller than the size required by law, and was fined $50 and costs by County Judge Brindley on Monday morning. Ristow was arrested by Conservation Warden Gautsch, who trailed illegal seiners in the river bottoms, south of the city, several weeks ago. Warrants were issued for the arrest of Eli Hill and A. C. Radio fans in the home town are requested to notify us if he comes through—because we have a hunch he might weaken at the last minute, not being strongly given to oratory.

YOUTH KILLED IN WILD RIDE AFTER ROAD-HOUSE PARTY

Grand-daughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan Seriously Injured in Automobile Wreck

NEW YORK.—Miss Adele Ryan, debutante daughter of John Barry Ryan and grand-daughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan, financiers, was in a critical condition Monday, the victim of an automobile crash early Sunday at Asbury park which cost the life of Lewis Gordon Norrie, Princeton hockey star and son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gordon Norrie of New York.

Norrie and his friends in two automobiles, according to police, were speeding to his aunt's home at Red Bank, N. J., from a roadhouse at 3 a. m., when Norrie's car, which was preceding, collided with an automobile driven by Isador Orbatel of Newark, demolishing both cars. The second car in the Norrie party did not stop, and the injured lay five minutes in a driving rain before they extricated one another and were taken to the hospital in a passing car.

Chief of Police White of Neptune township, said there was liquor in one of the cars.

MARK WORTH MORE AS WASTE PAPER THAN AS MONEY

NEW YORK.—One million German marks Monday were worth seven-tenths of one cent as currency in New York, but one million of the old mark notes sold as waste paper here, would bring but about $4. Thousands of these old mark notes still are being held in this country as souvenirs but they are valueless as to purchasing power.

Germany's outstanding note circulation has exceeded a quadrillion paper marks the latest weekly increase being more than 516 trillion marks.

MEDIUM TO GIVE THEATER SEANCE

Sunday nigt Sept. 0. Dr. Eddy, the noted medium will give a seance at the La Crosse theatre, for the purpose of demonstrating spirit power in the light. It is said the following is among the many manifestations given: Eddy's open light seance, given by him before the leading societies of England, and France, slate writing, supernatural visions, floating tables and chairs, materialization, thaumaturgy and many others. Dr. Eddy claims to be the only medium who has the endorsement of the Royal society of London, they having for three months tested him in every conceivable manner that human ingenuity could suggest, and at the finish presented him with a parchment verifying that the manifestations were beyond human aid.

INQUEST STARTS IN DEATH OF SCARSBO, STRUCK BY AN AUTO

Trimm and Miss Stevenson were in the rear seat. Trimm denied that Cassidy or anyone else in the party were intoxicated. The Johnsons had spent the evening at Yeomen hall and were invited into the car to be taken to their home. Trimm said he didn't see Scarsbo standing in the street. He said the car was stopped within 20 feet from the spot where Scarsbo was struck. There were no side curtains on the car, Trimm said, because the rain was coming straight down and was sort of a misty drizzle.

Didn't See Cassidy Drink

Arthur Johnson testified that he didn't see Cassidy take any drinks but that he appeared to have a few drinks and acted "as though he felt good." He declared that Cassidy handled the car well. They started north at about 20 miles an hour. Johnson estimated and were going at the speed when Scarsbo was hit. Johnson said he saw a street car stop at Third and Grove street as they rounded the bend at the car barn and that it had crossed over from the northbound track to the southbound track and had started back to the car barn when they reached Grove street. Johnson asserted that Scarsbo was standing in the middle of the street south of the line of the south side of Grove street.

Because of the rain on the windshield and the rain that was falling Johnson said it was not possible to see more than two or three car-lengths ahead of the car. He also said that as soon as he saw Scarsbo standing in the street he called Cassidy's attention to him. Cassidy stopped the car close to the old Zeisler brewery, now used by the La Crosse Plow company as a storehouse, after Scarsbo had been hit.

Mrs. Johnson stated that Trimm and Cassidy acted as though they had a few drinks and that Cassidy seemed to be "feeling good." He could handle the car despite any drinks he might have had, Mrs. Johnson declared. She said she didn't see Scarsbo as her view ahead was obstructed by her husband who was sitting in her lap. She said the car was going about 20 miles an hour and that it was stopped within 50 or 60 feet. She said it was raining but not raining hard.

William Griswold, operator of the one-man street car, testified that Scarsbo tried to get on his car at the Third and La Crosse street stop but that he did not stop the trolley until he got to the switch at Third and Grove streets. Scarsbo ran after the car, Griswold said, and asked him if the car was going to the north side. Griswold told him a north side car would be along in a few minutes. Scarsbo remained standing between the car tracks and the curb and Griswold, seeing the headlights of a car coming around the bend, says he yelled to Scarsbo to step back, that he would be hit by the auto. Scarsbo did not speak very good English, Griswold said. Scarsbo did not show any signs of being intoxicated, Griswold declared. Griswold then started his car back to the car barn and was not at the street intersection at the moment of the accident. He said Scarsbo was standing south of the south line of Grove street.

Drs. Flynn and Skemp who performed the autopsy on Scarsbo, testified that he died from a fracture of the skull, shock and hemorrhage. Besides the wounds on the head, Scarsbo's left leg was badly crushed and his right leg bruised.

Mrs. Trimm told practically the same story as her husband. She said she couldn't see Scarsbo standing in the street and didn't know anyone was there until he was hit. She asserted that the rain obscured the view through the windshield and that the car was stopped shortly after the accident, or as soon as Cassidy could put the brake on.

Cassidy was placed on the witness stand a few minutes before adjournment. He admitetd having two drinks in Sokolik's place but denied that he was intoxicated. He asserted that he couldn't see Scarsbo until he was within a few feet of him, too late to stop. There was no storage battery on the Ford, he said, and the lights were ignited by the magneto. Unless one were going very fast the lights would be dim. Cassidy said he was going about 15 to 20 miles an hour and that the headlights were dim. He said he couldn't recall Johnson having told him there was a man in the street, all he remembered was that there was much screaming at the moment the auto hit Scarsbo. Cassidy said Scarsbo was standing on the north side of the Grove street intersection.

STATE SEEKING TO CLOSE WILDWOOD, AND WESTERN HOTEL

Action Brought Under Lindley Law; Places are Declared a Nuisance

Abatement proceedings will be started in county court, probably late Monday, by District Attorney Gordon against the Western Hotel and Bluff View Inn. The actions are brought under the Lindley law which gives the authorities power to close up premises for a year on the grounds that they are being conducted as nuisances.

In both cases, the district attorney charges that the premises have been used for immoral purposes. Adolph Seiler is owner of the Bluff View Inn or Wildwood property. William and Charles Hammond, Ray Horn, J. E. Richie and Naif Abraham are alleged to be the operators. The Western hoted building, at 205-07 Pearl street, is owned by Shaheen Markos, Salim Markos, Nicholas Markos and Thamar Markos. It is alleged to be operated by Phillip Juboor.

The cases of J. E. Richie, Ray Horn, Pete Larson and Mrs. "Mickey" Shannon, arrested in the raid last week on Bluff View Inn, will be called in county court Monday afternoon. The case of Naif Abraham, as an operator of the place also will be taken up.

now become practicable, since all the world is now agreed upon the fundamental principle of the method of doing it; and also as there is common judgment that it is only through American leadership that it may be accomplished, he asked most spiritedly if any American could actually oppose such action. War seemed to him but a mental disease persisting out of the past, a disease which the nations have the power to eradicate by simply getting together and using that power in a fiat of all mankind that henceforth man must stop the making of it.

* * * *

Mr. Harding told me the World Court was but a minor part of his great plan. "I see that this court will be of small value," he said "without a vital law for it to rest upon and interpret and without power behind it to enforce its judgments. We must make such a world law ending war, we must provide the powers needed to enforce it, and then the problem is solved—the public opinion, the common sense, the impulse to self-preservation of all peoples will do the rest—the old system of militarism and of force in settling disputes between nations will fade away there as it has disappeared between all other units of society."

* * * *

The details of the method by which he proposed to achieve this, which I shall outline in the next two articles of this series, justify the late president's prophecy:

"Ten years hence nations will no more think of resort to force in settling their differences than corporations or firms or individuals do now. There is no more sense in a nation trying to kill and destroy its neighbor than there would be in a railroad company wrecking the trains of a rival line, or a steamship company sinking the ships of a competitor. All the world is beginning to see this simple truth. The hour is ripe for crystallizing it in international law. And it is my ambition to make our country the instrument of this great forward step for the benefit of all mankind."

PLAY ERRORLESS BALL BEHIND "SYL" M'CAULEY SUNDAY

Games for Championship of Western Wisconsin Stand Even After Sunday's Battle

M'CAULEY AT HIS BEST AS VISITORS ARE BEATEN, 2-0

Locals Hang up Two Counters on Three Hits in Third

ONE more game to decide the championship of western Wisconsin baseball fought out on the diamond between the La Crosse Nelsons and Eau Claire will be required as a result of the former's 2 to 0 victory at Cope park Sunday afternoon.

Ideal weather prevailing the second battle of the series was staged before a full grandstand and the great number in the outfield brought back a reminder of the summer days when throngs banked about the roped outfield to witness the attractions.

Hard Fought Game

Sunday's game was hard fought from the beginning and provided fans with a nice windup at the tail end of the season. McCauley was at his best, holding the visitors down with four hits and scattered hits, scattered evenly in the first four innings of play. After that only the great number faced him in each inning, save the sixth and eighth when the members who batted up gained a pass. He was accorded errorless support.

Eau Claire got away to a beautiful start for runs in the initial frame, for the stellar work of Meredith in centerfield put the champs on a scoring basis. Duncan smashed the first ball over for a hit to short center and Mason was safe at first on his grounder to Moore, who chose to play for Duncan at second, but the throw failed and both runners were safe. Farrington lined to Meredith, who whipped it back to Walters covering second and Duncan was out. Mackey Smith grounded to Walters and Mason was in turn touched off at second. Only on two occasions did the visitors reach second base after the first inning, Pitcher Johnson getting a two base hit in the third, and Mason took second after drawing a walk in the sixth.

Score in Third

The locals' two counters were hung up in the third stanza. McCauley, first up, struck out, and Shields doubled. Meredith was safe on Duncan's wild peg to first on a grounder. Walters drove a single into left center, scoring Meredith, Bucky Smith following with another single, counting Walters. Bucky stole second but Schaefer went out, Farrington to Smith.

Manager Satek's tribe threatened to push over another tally in the sixth but fell short with a man on third and second.

Bobby Moore, covering third base for the La Crosse Nelsons, was walked twice in three trips to the plate. Tommy Till and Moore were the only local men failing to chalk up a hit. Bobby contributed a bit of brilliant baseball in the seventh, picking up Piper's liner with his throwing arm and whipping him out to Wolf with a lightning peg.

Paper Stars

Paper at second base for the visitors, was a shining light in the infield. He robbed Bobby Moore of a hit in the fourth inning by making a dive and scooping up his grounder that was wide of his territory.

Art Johnson pitched a winning brand of ball throughout the contest with the exception of the third inning when the locals tapped him for three hits and two scores. He scattered the other four hits in as many innings and was going stronger at the end of the battle. His strikeout list totaled seven, against ten for McCauley.

Ozzy Wolf at first and Joe Shields at second played brilliant ball, while Walters showed up in good form to compose an invincible infield along with Moore.

WITH THE MAJOR LEAGUES

CHICAGO, Ill. — Cincinnati advanced in the National league race yesterday by defeating Brooklyn, 5 to 1, while New York and Pittsburgh were idle. The Reds are now the only contenders for the league pennant however, as the Pirates, even if they won all their games while the Giants lost all theirs, would still be half a game behind. The Reds are now four to the bad.

The Giants need four victories to insure the world's series.

Chicago defeated Philadelphia in the National league 4 to 1, Aldridge holding the Phillies to three hits. Boston won a double-header from St. Louis 2 to 1, and 3 to 0.

In the American League, Cleveland and Washington split a double-header.

Other teams were not scheduled.

Allowing Brooklyn but five hits, Adolph Luque, the Cuban, registered his twenty-sixth victory of the season.

5,000 HOME FOLKS GREET CHAMP JACK ON HIS ARRIVAL

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Five thousand "home folks" greeted Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, when he stepped off the train in his own city Saturday. A parade was formed at the depot and the champion was escorted through the business section of the city where at least another 5,000 had gathered to get a glimpse of the Salt Lake boy who had successfully defended his title against the "wild bull from the Pampas."

George Von Elm, Salt Lake golfer, who made an enviable record at the Flossmoor meet, came in on the same train and was hailed as a fellow champion by the crowd. Both Dempsey and Von Elm were introduced to the people, although introductions were not necessary.

Dempsey will remain here for a few days and then go to Los Angeles.

SEVENTY GRID MEN REPORTING TO "CUB" BUCK AND A. C. DENNEY AT LAWRENCE COLLEGE STADIUM

APPLETON, Wis.—With 70 men, twelve of them veterans of last year's championship squad, the largest turnout in history, responding to their call each day, Lawrence college football mentors, "Cub" Buck and A. C. Denny, are rapidly rounding preliminary preparations into shape for the opening tilt of the season against Stevens Point Normal school in this city on Saturday, September 29. The past few days have been spent at hardening and getting the men into condition, passing and punting and receiving the ball, with special line drill for line candidates, and special work and mannerisms of handling themselves and the ball for backfield material.

Captain Lysle Blackbourne, for two years all-state tackle, with Kotal, last year's quarter, are showing up unusually well and forecast their most brilliant record this season. Prospects for the Blue and White varsity, three years in succession Wisconsin champions and as well last season tied for first honors in the mid-west conference, barring season accidents, are excellent, and the Lawrence campus is confidently awaiting the opening of the conference schedule.

Not only are varsity prospects most excellent, but also the first year squad is of unusual caliber. Coach William Smith, newly appointed to supervise first year training, has a squad of over thirty of the cream of Wisconsin high school graduating classes of last spring reporting to him daily for duty, and Lawrence looks to gaining added fame in its "Frosh" conference relations, growing out of the new rule in the mid-west wheel barring first year men from varsity squads.

Blazing the Way

PERHAPS the outstanding characteristics of the Standard Oil Company [Indiana] and its success lies in the fact that in all of its activities it has had to establish precedent—there was none to follow.

For this reason it was forced to delve far into science—to analyze—to deduce—to conclude—to act.

It was the task of the Standard Oil Company [Indiana] to eliminate haphazard—to eliminate the speculative.

If the products of petroleum were to be a staple and become an integral part in the operation of other industries, the entire process of refining petroleum must be based on scientific accuracy.

It was on this premise that the Standard Oil Company [Indiana] established its immense research laboratories, equipping with every modern facility.

The findings of the men in these laboratories have contributed much to the success of the Standard Oil Company [Indiana] and enabled it to earn its rightful position as a leader in the industry.

Scores of new products have been evolved in these laboratories. All were taken from the single base—crude petroleum. They have enabled you to partake of many of the refinements of life and to enjoy comforts that otherwise would have been denied you.

Viewed broadly, the pioneer work of the Standard Oil Company [Indiana] has done much to stabilize industry; to put production on a standard of accuracy; to reduce the cost of commodities; to develop new methods; to give inventive genius a starting point.

The Standard Oil Company [Indiana] has not confined its pioneering alone to the manufacturing and selling of petroleum products.

It has inaugurated new methods of industrial relations within its own organization that have gone a long way towards solving the problems confronting industry generally.

Thus, by blazing its own trail has the Standard Oil Company [Indiana] grown big—big in size and big in service—to the thirty million people of the Middle West.

OWATONNA, Minn. — Sherman Bell, Austin, was fined $100 and sentenced to 15 days in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of transporting liquor. Bell's arrest occurred last week when Sheriff Joseph Fisher and his deputies raided a farm in the southeastern corner of the county and captured Bell as he was leaving the place with 30 gallons of liquor in a car.

RIVOLI THEATER VAUDEVILLE MAKES DECIDED BIG HIT

A clever vaudeville bill of five acts was offered yesterday at the Rivoli theater with a feature run picture. The bill was one of the most pleasing that have been offered during the season.

The Guiliani trio made a decided hit with its presentation of classic songs. The three members of the group rendered these songs in a grand opera manner and scored a decided hit. One of the members was a soprano, another a contralto and the last member was a tenor.

Stuart and Crotty gave a series of fast, eccentric and drunken dances that were very popular. The two men were immaculately attired and performed their numbers in a pleasing fashion.

Snappy comebacks from a "hello girl" was featured in the act given by Elliott and Walker. Their songs and dialogue furnished many laughs. Frank "Cracker" Quinn performed a fast bill of a one man minstrel show.

McIlvar and Hamilton played a series of comedy acrobatic stunts that kept the audience spellbound. The introduction of a three year old daughter and two year old son who performed with remarkable ability brought a great deal of applause.

REMOVE BODY OF OGLETHORPE TO U. S.

LONDON.—Permission was granted by English authorities to Oglethorpe university for the removal to the United States of the remains of James Edward Oglethorpe, founder of the institution and first governor of Georgia.

MOVIES

"HOLLYWOOD"

Photoplay patrons are going to be greatly interested in "Hollywood," a new production which has as its background — the motion pictures themselves.

That's what "Hollywood" which comes to the Rivoli theatre today, brings to the screen and with it a very enjoyable tale of a middle western family which goes to Hollywood and gets entangled with the great industry that has made the community as famous as Paris itself.

Several faces unfamiliar to the screen public will appear in leading roles which adds zest to the whole thing, but the "support" includes many screen notables of international prominence.

"THE PRISONER"

One of those fascinating romantic tales with which George Barr McCutcheon has beguiled the world came to the screen of the Majestic theatre last night starring Herbert Rawlinson, "The Prisoner."

It was adapted from "Castle Cranerow," a novel of Vienna and the neighboring castle-laden hills. The action is adventurous, the love theme unusual and the settings elaborate. Rawlinson's role is that of a world traveller and adventurer who finds himself very bored at the dull life in Vienna, when suddenly romance appears in his path in the form of an old sweetheart, played by Eileen Percy.

CASINO TODAY

William S. Hart, famous portrayer of western and bad men's roles in Paramount pictures, has a novel role —that of a mill foreman in his latest picture, "The Whistle," which will be shown at the Casino theatre today. Although "The Whistle" is said to be equal to "The Testing Block" and "O'Malley of the Mounted," it is not, like those two productions, a western picture. "The Whistle" deals with an interesting phase of industrial life. The story is dramatic and the various situations, including characteristic Hart fist fight, are thrilling.

CASINO FRIDAY

"There is something in the thrumming of a guitar, in the warm human notes of a tilting love song that awakens in most of us a quick response to the strong appeal of adventure and romance. That is the kind of story which awaits you at the Casino theatre. "A California Romance" will be shown for two days, starting Friday. This Fox production starring John Gilbert tells of the stirring days when California was ceded to the United States.

To give the story in detail would spoil the enjoyment of those who will see it on the screen.

CYLINDER REGRINDING GRIND YOUR CYLINDER—WHY?

Because you know that when an automobile comes from the maker the engine has true, ROUND CYLINDERS. You also know that as soon as you start to run your ENGINE wear takes place in the CYLINDER. Unfortunately the wear is not UNIFORM, and is only a question of time when your CYLINDERS are out of round and taper. Your engine pumps oil, fouls plugs, develops a knock or piston slap or consumes oil and gasoline out of proportion to the service rendered. Therefore you cannot correct the error simply by changing pistons and rings. To overcome these troubles your CYLINDERS must be REGROUND and fitted with oversize pistons and rings. Then you will have an ENGINE the same as what you got from the maker.

FORD SPECIAL—Ford cylinders reground and fitted with oversize pistons, wrist pins, bushings and rings, complete, $16.00.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK—Prices displayed a firm tone at the opening of Monday's stock market. The usual industrial leaders showed little or no change, but a resumption of short-covering operations was noted in the oils, equipments and foods. Gains of a point each were registered by American Sugar Refining, Dupont and Bethlehem Steel.

Prices strengthened late, Dupont and Gulf States Steel each extending their gains to two points. The demand was most effective in the oils, sugars, chemicals and independent steels. Gains of a point or more were registered by Corn Products, common and preferred, Cuba Cane preferred, Cosden, Phillips Petroleum, Baldwin, American Cotton Oil preferred, Mack Truck and several others. Pierce Oil preferred off one, was the only heavy spot. Sharp rallies in French and Belgian francs featured the strong foreign market. French francs jumping 15½ points to 6.17 cents and Belgian 32½ to 5.15 cents.

The general market made only a feeble response to an upturn in the low priced oils in the afternoon which lifted Pacific, Marland and Phillips Petroleum 1 to 1¼ beyond last week's close. Studebaker was offered freely and relapsed to 99¾, while several other popular industrials were also heavy.

The closing was steady. Bullish demonstrations in Continental Can, Houston Oil, Corn Products, United States Alcohol and Dupont, which advanced 2½ to 4½ points brought about a sympathetic rally in other sections of the list in the late dealings. Sales approximated 600,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Ill.—In response to strength in the corn market, wheat developed a little firmness Monday during the early dealings. For the first time this season, September corn went above 87 cents a bushel and new crop months, too, showed gains. Scarcity of immediate supplies of corn also was a bullish factor and so likewise was belief that frost had done serious damage. The wheat opening, which ranged from ⅛c off to ⅛c up, with December $1.02⅞ to $1.03¼ and May $1.08⅛ to $1.08⅜, was followed by slight general gains.

Subsequently gossip about an increased tariff on wheat imported into this country helped to lift prices further. The close was strong, ⅞ to 1⅛c net higher with December $1.03⅞ to $1.04⅛, and May $1.09⅝ to $1.09⅞.

Corn trading showed somewhat increased volume. After opening ⅛c lower to ⅞c advance, December 69 to 69⅛c, prices scored a moderate general upturn.

In the later dealings, the market continued to ascend, and May as well as September, touched a new high price record for the season. The close was strong ½ to 1⅛c net higher, December 69½ to 69⅝c.

Oats, acting in sympathy with corn, started unchanged to ¼c higher, December 40⅛c and later held near to the initial range.

Provisions were easy as a result of lower quotations in hogs.

KONETCHY MUST SERVE SENTENCE IN WINONA JAIL

Joseph Konetchy, 26-year-old La Crosse resident, must serve 20 days in the Winona county jail for driving an automobile while intoxicated and at an unreasonable rate of speed. Judge C. E. Callaghan ordered in district court in affirming the sentence imposed by Judge J. J. Fitzpatrick in municipal court, July 9.

Konetchy has already served seven days of the sentence, leaving thirteen more days of confinement.

Mr. Buck contended that the lower court had erred in issuing a commitment of 20 days in jail when a sentence of 10 days had been imposed on each of the two charges. He argued that, since the court had failed at the time of imposing sentence to specify that the terms should be consecutive and not concurrent, they would have existed simultaneously and expired at the same time at the end of ten days.

Judge Callaghan ruled that the lower court, in amplifying its record after the appeal had been taken by adding a provision that the two sentences were to be consecutive and not concurrent, had acted to make the record conform to the sentence pronounced by the court. He also found that the commitment, which recited the conviction in both cases and directed imprisonment of the defendant for 20 days, had been issued "presumably in pursuance of the oral sentence pronounced."

Idaho Prunes

America's finest Canning Plums!

Whether you know them as Idaho Prunes or as Italian Prunes or simply as "the Big Blue Plums with that Sweet-tart flavor, there is no fruit of the plum variety finer for home-canning, especially during these days of high-priced sugar."

Fresh, ripe Idaho Prunes contain 20% natural sugar, which makes it possible to can them without the use of any additional sugar. Canned in this way, they are excellent for later use in making pastries, or for serving as sauce with a little sweetening added.

Cold Pack Method
Steam and wash prunes. Prick skins. Pack in clean, hot jars, filling with juice from crushed fruit. Partially seal and place in cooker for processing. Water bath for processing may be either a large kettle or wash boiler with wire rack. Start with water same temperature as jars covering to depth of one inch. Bringing water bath to a boil, and let jars remain in boiling water fifteen minutes. Remove from water bath and seal. If pressure cooker is used, process at five pounds pressure for five minutes.

By the cold-pack method, the busy housewife can put up more fresh prunes in a shorter time than any other fruit. Follow the above recipe and see how easily it's done. A sixteen-pound box makes ten to fifteen quarts, depending on how closely the fruit is packed in the jars.
